Program Evaluation

In general, a program can be evaluated for either process efficiency, how it is managed and administered, or by effectiveness as measured by outcomes. Each program would require specific metrics based on the service provided. Below are some crime reduction program methods and measurement examples:

Delores Barr Weaver Policy Center-Girl Matters program- an intervention and mentoring for girls and young women, especially those in the justice system which utilizes college interns as mentors for elementary school girls. Metrics include: number of school suspensions (trackable through school data), perceptions of school connectedness and positive perceptions of the program (collected through surveys).

Boston Ceasefire Initiative- a direct law enforcement attack on illicit firearms traffickers supplying youths with guns and an attempt to generate a strong deterrent to gang violence, focus on intrastate and interstate gun trafficking, direct outreach to gang members, identify causes of violence

Oakland Gun Violence Reduction Program- problem analysis to determine highest violence risk population, outreach to provide program services and case management, ongoing data assessment for trends, weekly shooting reviews (assess cause, location, victim, perpetrator), de-escalation training for law enforcement, tacking of police use of force, portion of property tax dedicated to service providers (case managers, life coaches, stipends, housing, job training, mental health), $8 million from the City and private contributions for funding, city funded programs require formal program evaluations from an outside provider

*New York City-*crime has fallen in New York City in each of the major felony categories. NYPD is using less deadly force, making fewer arrests and scaling back unconstitutional practices like stop and frisk, instead they are focusing on building trust in the city's neighborhoods and reaching the relatively small groups of people — mostly gangs and repeat offenders — believed to be responsible for most crime, while also building relationships in communities where trust has been strained. Research also indicates that crime trends are closely tied to economic conditions.

Gun buyback initiatives- "no questions asked" cash for firearms programs conducted by numerous cities

Other youth oriented programs- dropout rate, graduation rate, employment rate, truancy/school attendance, juvenile arrests, juvenile recidivism, perceptions of safety and wellbeing, enrollment in after school programs, use of support services

Before and After School Tutoring- enrollment numbers, grade promotion, attendance, GPA

Ex-offender services- recidivism rates, employment rates

Domestic Violence- number of individuals receiving assistance, counseling and job training, housing

*Abuse prevention and parent training-*enrollment, home visits, attendance, perceptions of wellbeing, reduction in abuse incidents

Job Training- financial self-sufficiency, stable housing, job placement/ employment rate, childcare

3

Mental Health Support Services- number of participants, availability (in schools, community organizations)

Substance abuse- prevention, addiction treatment, follow-up support services

Youth Development-Art, Music, Sports- enrollment

Adult arts and academic enrichment programs - enrollment

Community service- participation, hours served

Enforcement- arrests, civil citations, diversion referrals, violent crimes (number of homicides, assaults, nonfatal shootings), armed robberies, property crimes, public satisfaction with police, perceptions of safety

Tristan,

So nice meeting you yesterday! All of our programs have effectiveness measures. We have deliverables as part of each of our contracted agreements, and part of those include reports of effectiveness. Some of the reports are done internally, and some are created by the organizations themselves as self-reports. In addition, we regularly go through a Program Review and Strategic Abandonment process, and we have those reviews available, as well. Many of our grant-funded programs also go through a review process with an external evaluator.

All programs through KHA went through a review process from an external evaluator. In addition, the district worked with KHA (JCC, at the time) to develop profiles for all of the after school providers. Just as a word of caution, this is a brand new process that we have worked with KHA to institute. It is intended to provide formative data to help our after school and summer camp providers see where they are performing well and where they may need to help or support. It is not intended to be punitive, but rather a tool for continuous improvement.

Was there a particular program that you are interested in? I have also copied Dr. Kelly Coker-Daniel on this email, as assessment and accountability, as well as research, is her area.

Thanks,
Dana

Good afternoon all,

The informative link that you provided 2 weeks ago was extremely helpful. We were curious if you/DCPS had any information on measurements of effectiveness? That is to say, having crime prevention initiatives is one thing; showing that those initiatives are making a difference is another matter entirely.

Tristan,

Pleasure to have met you on yesterday. I am including a few of my colleagues on this email as they may be able to provide some assistance/guidance. The United Way 211 Department has a robust database of various non-profits in the area. Unfortunately, I'm not aware of any outcome related measures we capture for these agencies, as 211 is an information and referral source.

Thanks for reaching out to us!

Good afternoon, Tristan. My name is Terri Swanson and I'm the 2-1-1 Operations Manager. We do not offer a printed version of our database any longer but there is a Community-facing portal to the information in our database. To access this information, you go to the 2-1-1 webpage at www.nefl211.org. Currently, that re-directs you to our UW homepage linked to 2-1-1. At the bottom of the page is a red box that says Search Database. Click on Find Help.

My recommendation is to take another step here and click on Advanced Search to the right. Our 2-1-1 and database services a 9 county area, so tailoring your search will be helpful. Simply select a key word at the top of the search screen and then scroll down to AREAs SERVED. This will allow you to filter answers by zip code or county. Then search. The resulting list will be active links that you can open to learn more about the programs.

Please note that, as Keto said, 2-1-1 is an information and referral service that works to connect people with needs to resources in our community that may be able to help. Each agency or program is not accountable to 2-1-1 for their program outcomes. Searches in our community database are based on word-matching, primarily using the program description. Occasionally, searches return unexpected outcomes if the word or term you are searching can be used in a different context. Most of the resources in our database are human and social services programs that provide direct services to members of the community, not programs offering indirect assistance or services only to existing clients.

If you have additional questions, please feel free to reach out to me directly.

Best wishes,
 -Terri

Good afternoon Mr. Baxton,

I am writing from the office of Council Member Tommy Hazouri; we were in the Accreditation meeting at the Duval County School Board with you earlier this afternoon. The City Council is currently working on its Strategic Plan Initiatives, and one of those is to come up with a complete, comprehensive inventory of crime reduction organizations and initiatives. We were hoping Communities in Schools Jacksonville might have some type of listing of these organizations – any organizations that serve the children, their families, and/or the surrounding communities with the intention of reducing crime. For example, after-school programs like PAL, any non-profits, etc. We were also wondering if they had any types of measurement for these programs to gauge their effectiveness. Would you know if a something like that exists?

You are welcome to give me a call with any questions you might have, or for clarification. CM Hazouri was confident you could be a good resource for us in this search!

Description:

Daniel Memorial offers an array of community-based services for children and families that need help but don't require the intensive treatment the children in our residential services program receive. Daniel provides a variety of services for children who have trouble relating to family or friends at home or who struggle behaviorally and academically within their school environment. Daniel bring critical prevention and intervention programs to the community at large by reinforcing existing area suicide prevention programs and offering support services to children and families at risk for abuse or neglect.

Programs offered:
Journey to Success Program: a neighborhood and family-centered program designed to meet the psycho-social needs of students at risk of continued involvement in the Criminal Justice System

Outpatient Mental Health: children struggling with significant emotional or behavioral issues that do not have to reside on Daniel's campus to receive help

School-based Behavioral Service: addresses behavioral issues that stem from challenging family dynamics, past trauma, or related coping issues. Daniel works with United Way Full Service Schools to help such children overcome these issues and improve academic performance through free assessment, case management, and counseling services

Strengthening Ties and Empowering Parents. A powerful intervention program works to preserve families and reduce the incidence of children entering foster care

Description:

Florida Youth Challenge Academy (FLYCA) is a 17 1/2 month voluntary program geared toward Florida's 16 to 18 year old at-risk youth. The program consists of a 5 1/2 month residential phase and a 12 month post-residential phase.

The residential phase of the program takes place in a highly disciplined and motivational environment promoting structure and academics along with leadership, health, community service, life skills, job skills, physical fitness and citizenship.

The post-residential phase takes place after graduation from the residential phase and is a time when the cadet uses the skills learned in the residential phase through their placement in either a job, further education, or the military. The cadet is matched with a mentor during the residential phase and this mentor helps to guide the cadet during the 12 month post-residential phase.
