Correlation and Causation

What's the difference between correlation and causation?

While causation and correlation can exist at the same time, correlation does not imply causation. Causation explicitly applies to cases where action A causes outcome B. On the other hand, correlation is simply a relationship. Action A relates to Action B—but one event doesn't necessarily cause the other event to happen.

Correlation and causation are often confused because the human mind likes to find patterns even when they do not exist. We often fabricate these patterns when two variables appear to be so closely associated that one is dependent on the other. That would imply a cause and effect relationship where the dependent event is the result of independent event.

However, we cannot simply assume causation even if we see two events happening, seemingly together, before our eyes. One, our observations are purely anecdotal. Two, there are so many other possibilities for an association, including:

- The opposite is true: B actually causes A.
- The two are correlated, but there's more to it: A and B are correlated, but they're actually caused by C.
- There's another variable involved: A does cause B—as long as D happens.
- There is a chain reaction: A causes E, which leads E to cause B (but you only saw that A causes B from your own eyes).

Suggested Questions for Committee:

% of arrested juveniles previously served by committee program and services

% of arrested adults previously served by committee program and services

Outstanding Research Questions:

- 1) Age (under 18, 18-24, 25-34, 35-44, 45-54, 55-64, over 65) breakdown of convicted Males by specific crime type
- 2) Age breakdown of the convicted Females for specific crime type
- 3) % with prior juvenile arrest and/or conviction
- 4) % prior conviction of any violent crime
- 5) % prior conviction of any crime
- 6) of those with prior convictions of any crime, average # of prior convictions of any crime
- 7) Residence zip code totals of those convicted
